

ArbiterGame Support Center

Sites & Sub Sites

Tuesday, June 26, 2012

All Arbiter groups share site information. This is how we ensure a site is not double booked. Because everyone shares the site info, anything you change will be seen and used by all - Think Wikipedia.

Most sites will have sub sites. These are the individual locations for games. You might have a park that has two soccer fields. The park would be the site and the soccer fields would be the sub sites. When looking for a site, if you don't see it right away, think of what else it might be named. For example, the city name might not be used.

Sub site rule of thumb - Each site has their own physical address. If a game location has a diff rent physical address it is a site. If it shares it with other game locations then enter it as a sub site. If your not sure give us a call.

Printed from ArbiterSports.com